Subject: Office copier

Hi Robyn,

I hope you had a great weekend!

To provide a bit more information on the copier and why I would recommend it, I would start with the financial benefits. The copier is a refurbished, lightly-used Toshiba 3015 for $5,150. A new Toshiba 3025 (current model) with the same configuration (fax, three drawers, and staple) would cost over $10k. Another option for you would be a Toshiba 401 copier, a smaller device that costs $5,250. This copier can only print up to legal size paper and can't staple, so I would still recommend the Toshiba 3015.

After the purchase, you would also see savings on the monthly service cost compared to your current device. You currently average 1206 black and 956 color pages each month, and the CPC rates are $0.0113 black and $0.0746 color. With the new device, those rates will drop to $0.0075 black and $0.055 color, saving you around $23/month. If you find that your print volume is going up, those savings will only increase.

When it comes to Toshiba vs some of the other brands out there, Toshiba has a favorable reputation as a durable and reliable brand with an easy to navigate user interface. It does not offer some of the advanced features (things like custom watermarks, bulk paper storage, advanced folding, etc.) that other brands like Sharp and Canon offer, which are on the more expensive side. And less expensive options like Ricoh don't typically hold up as well over time. Toshiba ends up being the sweet spot for value when it comes to durability and function without overspending.

We often recommend refurbished Toshiba devices for offices with relatively small average print volumes (typically under 5k/month) like yours. You still get all the functions of a new device at about half the price. The only downside is a new device would last about 8+ years before being discontinued and the refurbished is about 6+ years, which is not enough to justify spending twice as much in my opinion.

If you'd like to call me or want me to stop by to answer questions or provide more information, let me know and we can find a time. If you want to see more options, let me know!

Thanks,
